Don't Wear Old Shoes.

Feet are treacherous things. They need watching and tying up. Don't wear old shoes. When the leather loses its dressing and oil, and yawns so as to let the foot fal! over the sole-leather it is time to discard the boot or shoe. An old shoe is merely a covering for the foot: so is a stocking. If the feet are to be kept trim and shapely, they must be tidily dressed. When a woman is rash enough to fall sick and stay "down" a week or a month, she finds it difficult to dress herself the first six or eight up days. She is flabby and shapeless; her muscles are swoollen, when they should be taut and elastic. And it is the same with the feet in old boots.

Overeating.

It takes about three hours for digestion. If a second meal is eaten before the food has passed out of the stomach digestion is arrested, and does not go on with the first, until the second quantity has arrived at the same state of preparation. This neglect lasts two or three hours, and in the interim acidity and decay has set in. It is easy to imagine the unhealthy conditions of the mouth, stomach and blood produced by eating too often, not to mention eating too much or too fast. Dentists are forever stomach, and they know whereof C.c.

The Public Create the Demand.

When will the people of this community throw off the cloak of hypocricy which they are now true colors? When will they learn that "evil is as evil does," and "evil be to him who evil thinks?" As to the indecent exhibitions called recent issue of your valuable paper, I wish to inform him that if the public does not wish these exhibitions given, why do they flock to the where they are being produced, pay the entrance fee of from 50 cents unward into the dollars, and rapturously applied whichever of the pictures they think worthy of it? If men would show things they would soon be withdraws, but when they patronize the living picture houses to the small wonder that manager after manager introduces them, and that women are driven to the business of poxing. As to the indecent part of the performance, any one with a corrupt mind will draw a debased idea from a figure represents the highest attainment of God's reation-purity-while those who look at it with an elevated mind will perceive nothing in it excent what it is intended to portray. In regard

THE DRAKE. "Through His Protected Hat."

To the Editor:

Capital always seeks most profitable investment 'G. G." and other high protectionists overlook the fact. Give one industry protection, capital is at, once devoted to it, overproduction ensues, prices are cut, prices fall to normal. Protection benefits no industry permanently unless it confers monopoly. How can that benefit labor? Monopoly cludes competition, restricts product. Idle thousits "benefits." How can it benefit the man whom wages are cut because of overstocked labous man ket? Does employer pay fair wages because he is
